

THERE ARE TECHNICAL PEOPLE AND THERE ARE PEOPLE PEOPLE.

AT REDBUILT, OUR TECH REPS ARE BOTH.

RedBuilt is a leading supplier to the commercial construction industry across North America, with a portfolio of engineered wood products and solutions second to none. Our reputation for unparalleled service and support goes back over 50 years, and it continues to this day.

And we're growing.

We currently have a Technical Sales Trainee position open for a talented individual who wants to be part of this dynamic industry. This position would be based in our Boise, ID office and will report to the Regional Sales Manager.

Technical Sales Trainee:

This position is the stepping stone into a Technical Sales Representative position. Technical Sales Reps are the key players on a sales team anchored in both integrity and enthusiasm. You will forge long-lasting relationships in the local construction community as you develop opportunities for RedBuilt™.

Technical Sales Trainee responsibilities:

- Reviewing design documents
- Developing and presenting structural framing concepts
- Problem-solving with the design and construction communities
- Preparing estimates
- Negotiating a valued and profitable framing system
- Assisting Project Managers with effective project process flow

Technical Sales Trainees are creative thinkers with strong problem-solving skills, who will go to great lengths to take care of our customers. They consistently utilize all available tools and technologies at their disposal. They are simultaneously self-motivated, team-oriented and keen to develop their skills as they strive for a Technical Sales Representative position.

As knowledgeable advisors, our Technical Sales Reps are highly regarded and respected by their customers. They are passionate about the construction industry, and have a knack for designing structural systems—something valued by specifiers, contractors and building owners alike. Our Technical Sales Reps are excellent communicators and can accurately convey building concepts and ideas. They love challenges and take pride in winning! The Technical Sales Representative position will require an out of state relocation.

If this sounds like you, we'd love to hear from you!
